Kid Gleason's White Sox Find Whitehouse Easy

Youthful Southpaw from Minneapolis Is Pounded by Windy City Tribe, Giving Chicago Battle by 5 to 4 Count-Ayers Comes to Relief.

By JOHN A. DUGAN

EER how troubles all come in bunches, as young Lefty Whitehouse sure had many troubles in his initial start in the American League yesterday afternoon when the White-hosed tribe from the Windy City romped in with the second game of the series from the Nationals by a count of 5 to 4. Southpaw Whitehouse had so many troubles and so many things to think about in his first appearance against the Stockyard tribe that he was relieved of his duties in the fifth frame and Doc Ayres was called upon as the rescue hurler.

Whitehouse may have been able to get away with the old-timers while hurling with Minneapolis, but in the American Association, but when he faced the world champions of 1917, his roubles began, and during the four and one-third innings in which se worked the pivot position he was confronted with more troubles Cincinnati than a certain guy named Carter has pills. To begin with, the home tribe was facing the swift shoots of a speedy demon named Grover Brooklyn Loudermilk, and although they attempted on several occasions to turn his smokeball assortment into sour milk there was no response until after young Whitehouse had soaped himself down for a shower.

Joe Cantillon, who recommende this youthful southpaw, may tright in his prediction that he ready for the American League, a Joe has had quite an experience with Harry Harper and other will men of the Griffmen, but White house did not exhibit enough against the Lake Michigan trib yesterday to even offer the mos needed kind of an alibi, as the So; tuned up his slants for eight bingle during his stay on the hill, netting five tailies as a result.

Loudermilk's team-mates obtain d him a safe lead while White ourse was on the heaving hill, an he lanky right-handed flinger le p a few notches on the reins i tionals romped through with quartet of counters.

John Collins was sure a hoodoo pened up the first, third and fift ssions with bingles that result n runs for the visitors, while Edd follins and Swede Risberg al hade the going a trifle rough. D Ayers got away with a better fate, as the Sox were unable to score off blows were obtained off his slants.

egain started the dirty work with a blow to left and moved up when Ed-die Collins drew a pass. Weaver sacrificed the runners along a per nd John Collins crossed over ubber mat when Shanks was retir-ng Jackson at Judge's corner on a

Murphy opened the inning with safe bingles, while Gharrity placed Sammy through the stile with a counter on his blow to Weaver. Shanks hoisted a long fly to Jackson, and Murphy moved along a notch, while he crossed the pan when Grover sent a long fly to Felsch. In the ninth frame Pinch Hitter Menosky was passed and mov-ed up on Judge's hit to right and scored when Milan crashed to right

Columbus, Ohio, June 19.—House Republicans in a spirit of levity this afternoon out-hooted the Democrats and put through a resolution introduced by Representative Pearson, Rerublican, imploring Gov. Cox to stop the Willard-Dempsey bout scheduled for Toledo, July 4. This was on a vive voce vote. Democrats charged the Speaker with steam roller tactics in not asking for a roll call. A few minutes before Pearson's joint bill on the same matter failed of passage. The vote was 16 for and 24 against. Sixty-three votes were needed for passage.

JACK MUNROE

Famous Boxer, Soldier of Fortune and Author, will write a serial story describing the ring careers of

JESS WILLARD B JACK DEMPSEY

Starting with the Sunday Edition of June 22

Follow Jack Munroe!

He never led anyone wrong in his life. His great record in the world war tells heroic facts. Watch his articles, as he has the sure dope on both battlers. He has been an eyewitness of each of the gladiators on several occasions before they signed articles, and is at present a ringside spectator at the battle ground. Monroe was in the fistic game long before either Jess Willard or Jack Dempsey knew what a boxing glove looked like. Now as a war hero he will criticise and tell the value and boxing poundage of each of these ring warriors. His opinion is an undisputed authority, and his prediction of the winner will be an open wire to all Herald readers. Munroe will give you his honest opinion of the champion contender in his big serial feature.

LIEUT. JACK MUNROE, Princess Pat's Canadian Light Infantry.

Jack's Ring History

In 1914 Jack Munroe, while touring Canada, joined Princess Pat's Regiment. His wonderful physical condition placed him as the finest specimen of manhood in the Canadian army. Munroe fought in all the early battles, made a splendid record and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant. In 1915 he was severely wounded, sustaining a shattered arm, and returned to the United States. He then wrote the very successful war book, "MOPPING

His boxing career commenced in 1900 as an amateur at the Olympic Club, San Francisco, where he met and defeated all comers.

In 1902 Jim Jeffries, then champion, and Bob Fitzsimmon toured the country together and offered $500 to any boxer who could last four rounds with either. One evening Jack Munroe, almost unknown in such company, quietly entered the ring with Jeffries and after four fierce round was given the decision by the referee.

Munroe fought and defeated Tom Sharkey, Peter Maher and lesser lights, and fought a sixround, no-decision bout with Jack Johnson. He was later defeated by Jeffries, who had trained specially to wipe out the former beating at Munroe's hands. Incidentally Munroe was the first man that ever succeeded in knocking Jeffries down.
